

The keynote of this business is absolute satisfaction with each purchase. We know our qualities—know how they'll behave. The suits and overcoats (and everything else in the house) go to you with our broadest guarantee. There's a clear, open path back to the cashier's desk if at any time you're dissatisfied with what you've bought. Could anything be fairer?

FREAK ELECTION WAGERS.

Mount Vernon Leads in This Particular.

REPUBLICAN SPECIAL.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Oct. 16.—An election day draws near. The front door is coming to the front in this country. Some of the most novel wagers ever made here have been laid recently, chief among them being the one between Mrs. B. E. Palmer, a milliner of Woodlawn, and William Sides, a merchant of the same town. Mrs. Palmer is an ardent Democrat, and Sides is a Republican. The wagers are as follows: If Sides is elected next month, Mrs. Palmer is to give Sides a full-grown cow, cooked in any style he desires. If Sides is elected, Mrs. Palmer is to give Sides a full-grown cow, cooked in any style he desires. If Sides is elected, Mrs. Palmer is to give Sides a full-grown cow, cooked in any style he desires.

ALSCHULER APPLIES THE GOLDEN RULE.

Says It Should Be America's Guide in Dealing With Weaker Nations.

ASKS A POINTED QUESTION.

Have the United States Acted Rightly With the Philippines?—Large Crowds Greet the Democratic Nominee.

REPUBLICAN SPECIAL. Vienna, Ill., Oct. 16.—Notwithstanding his tremendous labors of yesterday, closing last night, Mr. Alschuler was awakened at 5:30 o'clock this morning at Shawneetown and boarded a train for Eldorado. Nearly 1,000 citizens had been apprised of his coming to Eldorado, and, after the usual handshaking preliminaries and in response to vociferous demands, the Democratic champion addressed them for about an hour. At every station along the line where it was known he was on the train the population crowded the platforms for a sight of the man whose father was not famous and who has a record of his own.

The Republicans all over this section of the State are in a turmoil among themselves and are divided into warring factions. The ruling element in this congressional district warned George W. Smith two years ago, so they allege, that he must leave this year to somebody else, and they also claim that he promised to quit if they threw an ardent Democrat, William Daniel Hogan, James A. Rose, Wall of Mount City, Chapman and Harrier, called on Smith to leave to keep his promise and go out of the congressional business, he swore that he never agreed to do it and positively refused to be taken down. Then they put up Judge Joe Roberts to beat Smith, and Smith wiped up the earth with the Judge and Congressman Young of Williamson thrown in for good measure. The machine made the late discovery that Mr. Smith is a steady and cannot be checked off. The only resource is the ballot, and these of them. Provisions are known how many—propose to scare Mr. Smith by running him behind his ticket this year. This furnished an opportunity for young L. S. Whitwell of Vienna, the Democratic candidate against Smith, and there are a lot of whooping democrats who believe he will defeat Smith and thus remove him from the path of a whole flock of ambitious Republican politicians. Whitwell accordingly carried Johnson County by a good majority. Republican though he is, he also runs ahead in every county in this district, but few believe he can be elected. In the legislative arena, which includes Alton, Carlin and Shawneetown, the Tanner Republicans are setting the Culion followers all over the pasture by some shrewd maneuvering, in which Secretary of State Rose is charged with leading assistance. The Tanner legislators secured the law on their side wherein the Senatorial committee is given power to appoint the legislative candidate.

The Tanner faction owned this committee, and it promptly nominated Craig of Alton and Bartley of Shawneetown for the House. It appears that Craig was given to understand that Bartley's nomination was merely to fill out the ticket, a sort of a nomination for fun, and Bartley was given the same idea. Now it develops that both are on the ticket to stay, and both are trying to win. Meantime the Culion faction nominated by petition Colonel Jasper Partidge of Carlin as a McKinley Republican. They should have been honest and stated that he was a Culion Republican. Here are two leaders of the warlike spirit running for an office which will cost only one of the three. It's dollars to doughnuts that the Culion will win, but the matter presents a serious phase from the fact that the Republicans are weak and Democrats are strong and trying to weaken Joe Howell and Mr. Bryant by trading and according to the latter's own admission, he is a Republican. It is not presumed any Democrats will take chances this year. The Democratic warning line can be said to report all attempts to trade or buy votes, and some may say that inside of the penitentiary in their desperate efforts to reach Springfield.

While the Republicans are scratching and biting each other, the Democrats never were so harmonious and enthusiastic and active. This was demonstrated by the many who came from Metropolis and Golconda by wagon and horse. After the election, the Republican club, led by B. A. Baker, sang "America." Mr. Spang introduced Mr. Alschuler, who bowed his acknowledgments for the hearty greeting of the audience he prepared his remarks for the first time. It has come to be recognized in this land that the principle of independence of independence have nothing worthy of commendation by the administration in Washington. This fact must be recognized by even the most violent Republicans. Also, that we have lived to see that time when the provisions of that immortal document have become obsolete and are outgrown; and that the new foundation of the American nation under which we were created and which we have acquired such ambitions and attempted such undertakings that we must move from this foundation. The trusts boldly proclaim to the people of this State that they will not submit, conquer and govern 1900—how many believe outside our Constitution. Consider it well for it is full of the consequences to our country. Do you ever stop to think whether the policy is right or wrong? Are you who believe in it? But I take it that you have your citizenship on something better and nobler than a party. It demands to vote with prepared for a great party. Let me ask you to wish well the brave people of this State for their consideration as patriotic propositions.

"Are you prepared to invite your services to continue the practice and points in Washington?"

He quoted the Golden Rule, and maintained that it should be the guide of every body in dealing with his neighbor.

"Should the Golden Rule be applied to the Russians they would resist," declared Mr. Alschuler, "and we would not attempt it for the reason that the Golden Rule is a great and powerful nation, although its civilization is not equal to ours."

The Golden Rule applies when the stronger deals with the weak and it should be our guide in transactions with weak nations. This quotation cannot be met with the beating of drums and flying of banners now going on over the country by both parties, I suppose, but up the line before your face. Are you doing toward the weak nations as you would have them do toward you if they were strong and you were weak? If not, then say so. If this thing is not right, if it cannot be justified, it ought not be continued longer than there can be a change in government, a reversal of the policy and a return to the fundamental principles of our Government. The true trust received recent attention, and the parallel between European nations and the United States in governmental policies lately developed in this country was clearly drawn.

Mr. McGuffey followed in a clear exposition of the manner in which laws are enacted in the Legislature. Both speakers were listened to with the closest attention, and frequent applause and cheers accompanied the telling points.

The Alschuler party left for Harrisburg at 4 o'clock, accompanied by Colonel Young, who joined Mr. Alschuler at Shawneetown.

The Republican majority in Johnson County will be cut about 20, and in Saline over 100. The eastern and western counties are also being cut. This was true at Shawneetown last night, and is true at Harrisburg to-night.
